

Easter Seals of Greater Houston is pleased to welcome Curt Harrison as its new Chief Executive Officer.

Curt brings more than 30 years of experience supporting people with intellectual and developmental disabilities, a career that began in high school when he first discovered his passion for helping others live full and meaningful lives. That early hands-on experience set the foundation for a lifelong commitment to advancing disability services, championing inclusion, and expanding opportunities for individuals and families.

Throughout his career, Curt has served in key leadership roles across nationally respected organizations. Before joining Easter Seals of Greater Houston, he served as CEO of Tobosa Developmental Services in Roswell, NM. Previously, Curt served Chief Operating Officer of United Cerebral Palsy of Birmingham, and Associate Executive Director with United Cerebral Palsy of Georgia and South Carolina. He has contributed nationally as a board and advisory group member, is an active member of the American Association on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities, and was honored as a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Fellow.

Curt's academic background includes a bachelor's degree in psychology from Mercer University, a master's degree in clinical psychology from Auburn University, and an MBA from the University of Alabama. His blend of clinical insight, operational leadership, and strategic vision positions him well to guide Easter Seals of Greater Houston through its next phase of growth and innovation.

Colleagues consistently note Curt's warm leadership style, strong advocacy, and deep respect for the individuals and families served by his organizations. He is excited to join the Greater Houston community and looks forward to building on the organization's long legacy of empowering people of all ages and abilities.
